Electric Service Restored

Customers to the South Central Power Company experienced a power outage late Wednesday night that continued into the early hours of this morning. According to officials of SCP, though, as of 10:30 this morning, service was back to normal in the Circleville and Pickaway County area, with the exception of parts of extreme eastern Pickaway County which is serviced by the Lancaster station.

Officials at the Franklin Street offices told the Herald that high winds broke off a transmission pole at approximately 11:30 p.m. Wednesday night, which interrupted service to some 3300 customers. The problem had been corrected and service restored to all but 100 or so customers by approximately 5 a.m. this morning. Service to those customers had been restored by 9:50 a.m.

The Circleville Fire Department dispatched a truck from Station No. 2 to the Circleville Manor Nursing Home at 12:06 a.m. this morning. Apparently the Manor's portable generator had failed to operate after the power outage occurred, and a CFD portable generator was used to supply power for lights at the facility. Firemen were on the scene until normal electric service was restored.

Senators At Odds Over Naming Of U.S. Attorney

CLEVELAND (AP) — A conflict over appointment of a new U.S. attorney for northern Ohio — a post that has been vacant for six months — came into the open Wednesday, when U.S. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, criticized supporters of lawyer Carl J. Character for the job.

Glenn supports Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court Judge George W. White, 46, for the job, while U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and U.S. Rep. Louis Stokes, D-21, are supporting Character.

Glenn criticized Stokes and other leaders of the black community for insisting that they have a right to name the candidate for the $43,500-a-year job. Glenn said Character's supporters told him at a recent meeting that he had no choice, that "I have to accept Carl Character or nobody."

Glenn said it was his best judgment that White was "best qualified and not just a political choice."

Stokes called Glenn's views a "slap in the face at the black community." He said Glenn lacks understanding of black leadership and "how that leadership has to be respected."

"The black community is saying that Carl Character is our candidate," said Stokes. "Metzenbaum has agreed to accept him."

Republican William D. Beyer has been serving as acting U.S. attorney since Frederick Coleman vacated the post last May.

St. Paul AME Church To Be Demolished

LANDMARK TO GO — The St. Paul AME Church on South Pickaway Street between Union and Mill is to be demolished.

By ROBERTA SPOWE
Herald Staff Writer

A Circleville landmark, The St. Paul A.M.E. Church located at 424 S. Pickaway St. will be torn down.

The church was organized by the Rev. L. Davis with a membership of 12 in the year of 1834 at 409 S. Pickaway St., on the west side of the street, in what is believed to be the site of a blacksmith shop.

Church membership grew rapidly and plans were made for construction of a church. Land was purchased at 426 S. Pickaway St., in 1879.

The corner stone of the new church was laid during the pastorage of the Rev. R. H. Morris. The building was constructed as to allow for the growth of the church membership.

ROUNDTOWN

BE sure to watch Teays Valley High School's In the Know team on television Saturday. The team will be shown at noon in competition with Grove City.

THE annual Jaycees Santa Claus parade will be held 2 p.m. Saturday Nov. 26. In past years the parade has always been a Friday event.

Jeff Wise, chairman of the parade for the Jaycees, said the date was switched to Saturday when it was learned that several floats could be in the parade if delayed a day.

COUNTRY Store of St. Phillips Episcopal Church will be held from 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Friday in the church parish hall. There will be a bake shop which will include pies, candies, homemade mincemeat and much much more. Luncheon of scalloped chicken or John Marzetti, hot chicken sandwiches and sandwiches, will be served from 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

THE Pickaway County District Public Library will close noon Wednesday and remain closed Thursday. Regular hours will be observed Friday.

In 1960 the church boasted of a membership of 35.

Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, V.R. Anderson has recently asked and received approval of the trustees of the annual conference to give Circleville some money to tear down the building which is in a bad state of repairs. Following a year's wait to enable the ground to settle, a new but smaller church will be built.

The conference and the mayor of Circleville are currently trying to raise the additional funds necessary for the demolition of the church building.

Biko Said Shackled

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Black leader Steve Biko was shackled naked for 48 hours during police interrogation and later driven naked to a prison where he died, police witnesses say.

Another police witness Wednesday said Biko attempted suicide while taking a bath in a prison hospital four days before his death Sept. 12.

Sydney Kentridge, a lawyer representing the Biko family at an inquest into the activist's death, asked what right police have to keep a man chained for 48 hours.

Col. Pieter Goosen, security police chief at Port Elizabeth where Biko was detained, replied he had the authority to do that to prevent detainees from killing or injuring themselves.

He said that also was the reason for keeping prisoners naked.

Mormon Observes 60th Wedding Anniversary

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church President Spencer Kimball and his wife, Camilla, spent a quiet day at home marking their 60th wedding anniversary, a church spokesman said.

Kimball, 82-year-old spiritual leader of the 3.7 million member Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and his wife were married Nov. 16, 1917, and are the parents of four children.

In one incident Wednesday afternoon, an angry crowd of pro-shah militants charged anti-shah demonstrators near Capitol Hill, but police kept the rival groups apart.

Throughout the day Wednesday, the shah traveled to and from his appointments around the city amid extraordinarily heavy security.

The shah, who flew to Paris Wednesday night, held his news conference at Blair House, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

He bitterly assailed the thousands who had come here to denounce his regime, saying they represented the forces of "international chaos and disorder and world revolution."

Press Secretary Jody Powell said Wednesday that no major decisions were reached on the sophisticated weaponry Iran wants to buy from the United States. Carter and the shah met for 80 minutes earlier in the day.

Powell said the two leaders discussed the human rights situation in Iran and reviewed a series of measures that country has taken in recent months to ease political repression.

Sadat-Begin Visit Will Be Saturday

Bulletin

JERUSALEM (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt will arrive in Israel Saturday night, Prime Minister Menahem Begin announced today.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Presidents Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Hafez Assad of Syrian openly disagreed today over the Egyptian's planned visit to Israel and Sadat declared: "still I will go."

Assad called the idea a source of "deep sorrow."

The two presidents, allies in the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, spoke to reporters after discussing Sadat's dramatic plan to address the Israeli parliament in Jerusalem. He would be the first Arab leader to visit Israel since its birth in 1948.

When reporters persisted in asking whether he really would go, Sadat became exasperated and declared: "Yes, yes, I am going. I don't say anything that I don't mean."

He later returned to Egypt.

Assad said: "It is really painful to me that I was unable to dissuade and to convince him of the seriousness of this trip (to Israel) and its reflection on the Arab cause and on the Arab situation as I see it."

Despite the open disagreement, Sadat denied there was any rift between himself and Assad. The Syrian leader greeted Sadat Wednesday with all the gun salutes and diplomatic fanfare proper to his rank, although informed sources said photographers were ordered not to take pictures of the two leaders when they made their customary embrace.

Assad and Sadat last clashed in public after Sadat reached a separate Sinai agreement with Israel after the 1973 war.

But this time Sadat insisted he was not heading for Jerusalem to make a separate peace. "I'm going to tell the Israelis in their own den: If you want to live in this area, well, here are the facts."

He said 70 percent of Arab problems stem from an "inferiority complex." Asked whether he expected his visit to Israel to lift this complex, he said: "Absolutely. Absolutely. Absolutely."

The proposed visit also drew criticism from a small opposition party in Egypt. The National Progressive Unity Party, a consistent critic of the government, said in a statement: "This visit will only make Israel more adamant and stubborn."

Sadat indicated Assad did not pressure him to reject the invitation Prime Minister Menahem Begin issued in response to overtures from Sadat. But after he took off for Cairo, Assad told reporters his failure to dissuade Sadat was a source of "deep sorrow" to him.

"Work on behalf of peace does not require a trip to Israel," said the Syrian president.

The two leaders appeared grim as they walked side by side past an honor guard to Sadat's plane.

Despite the disagreement, a Syrian spokesman reported Wednesday night that Sadat and Assad were still agreed on their basic demands for peace with Israel.

The spokesman said they agreed to "coordinate their efforts for a just and lasting peace in the Middle East based on complete Israeli withdrawal to pre-June 1967 borders and recognition of the legitimate rights of the Palestinians."

Sadat flew to Damascus Wednesday to reassure Assad he would not make a separate deal in Jerusalem. One Arab diplomat suggested that the Egyptian told his host he was going to Israel "to change the Israeli mentality about Arab intentions, and to show the world who is serious about peace and who is not."

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram reported Wednesday that the purpose of the trip was to remove procedural obstacles to a new Geneva peace conference between Israel and all its Arab adversaries.

Restoration Of Diplomatic Relations With Cuba Dim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects for full restoration of diplomatic relations and business ties with Cuba appear dimmed following a secret Carter administration study showing that Havana is stepping up its military intervention in Africa.

The study, based on intelligence estimates, does not quarrel with the steps taken by the administration so far to end 16 years of hostility between Washington and Havana. But its judgment is that the pace should be slowed.

Sources here said an estimated 23,000 Cubans, 19,000 of them military, are now in Angola, where the Marxist government is fighting to suppress insurgents who keep a civil war flaring.

The New York Times in today's editions quoted high-ranking administration officials as saying that Cuba has a military presence in 11 other African countries as well and has suffered hundreds of combat deaths in Angola.

The Times said one administration policy-maker said the Cuban actions make restoration of full diplomatic relations "impossible."

The build-up in Angola as described in the administration study contradicts promises given by Cuba during the Ford administration that there would be a general decrease in Cuba's military presence in the former Portuguese colony.

Instead, the Cuban strength is on the upsurge, bolstering President Agostino Neto, who was carried to power partly by Cuban forces in a civil war with pro-western factions.

The administration has registered its concern in Havana over the African intervention. Sources here said the Soviet Union also has been made aware of the American displeasure.

Earlier this week, the State Department estimated that about 550 Cubans have been sent to Ethiopia, all except 150 of them military. The 550 Cubans represent an eightfold increase since May.

In Ethiopia, the Cubans are assisting a Marxist regime fight invading forces from Somalia, which has broken relations with Havana and expelled resident Russian advisers.

Carter said in mid-February he would be willing "to move toward normalizing relationships" with Cuba if he could be convinced that it wanted to remove its "aggravating influence from other countries in this hemisphere" and "will not participate in violence in nations across the ocean."

"Interest sections," which perform many of the functions of regular embassies, were opened in the two capitals Sept. 1. American business groups, sensing new opportunities, have criss-crossed Cuba with the hope that trade could be restored. And the two countries have reached agreement on fishing zones.

Westfall Band To Perform In Kentucky

The Westfall High School Marching Band was recently notified by the Kentucky Derby Festival Committee that they have been officially invited to participate in the 1978 Kentucky Derby Festival.

The "Pride of the Mustangs," under the direction of Mark Hosler, will participate in the Derby Marching Band Contest on May 3 and the Festival Parade on May 4. This will be the Mustang Band's first performance outside of state and at this time it is one of only two bands invited from Ohio to participate in this event.

Fund raising will begin soon to finance this trip to Louisville and any donations would be appreciated.

Shah Of Iran Urges 'Break' For Oil Consuming Countries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Shah of Iran, who earlier this week said his country would "remain silent" on the question of raising oil prices, now says the oil export cartel should "give a break" to consumer countries and forego any increase for at least a year.

The shah said President Carter talked him into changing his position from one of neutrality to openly opposing a price hike.

"After perusing the world economic situation, we have come to this conclusion to give you a break," the shah told reporters.

Iran wields considerable influence in the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which meets Dec. 20 in Caracas, Venezuela, to discuss proposed price hikes.

Most other producing countries favor some price increase. Iraq has proposed raising the current world oil price of about $12.50 a barrel by 23 percent.

Experts calculate that the price of gasoline in the United States rises one cent for every 8 percent increase in the OPEC price.

The shah said eventual increases are inevitable unless the consuming nations begin strong conservation measures and new sources of energy are discovered.

The Iranian monarch outlined his position during a news conference as he ended his 32-hour violence-marred state visit here.

On Monday, the shah told interviewers that Iran would let other OPEC members "carry the ball" at the Caracas conference.

He noted in that interview that Iran has been called a "hawk" on past price hike proposals. Last year, the country backed a 10 percent increase.

The monarch's visit here took place amid marathon demonstrations in support and in opposition to his regime, but there was no repetition Wednesday of the outbursts of violence that marked the first day of his visit.

In contrast to the 124 injuries and 18 arrests resulting from Tuesday's violence, police reported only 10 injuries requiring hospital treatment and 10 arrests Wednesday.

As demonstrators arrived at Dulles International Airport on Wednesday night to board charter flights home, police set up a security check and said they confiscated dozens of baseball

Market Report

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market headed lower today as Wall Street awaited the latest Federal Reserve data on the money supply.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 3.99 to 833.07 in the first half hour.

Losers outpaced gainers by a 3-2 spread among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted some uneasy expectations that weekly data due from the Fed at the NYSE close would show an upswing in the money supply.

Such a development might be taken as a setback to recent hopes that the Fed would not feel the need to tighten credit any further in its efforts to limit monetary growth and restrain inflation.

White Motor led the active list, up 2 1/2 at 11 1/4. A former White Motor official said he hopes to make a tender offer for control of the company.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.72 to 837.06.

Declines nosed out advances by a small margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 24.95 million shares against 27.74 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .19 to 53.53.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .16 at 118.75.

Tension Mounts In British Firemen Strike

LONDON (AP) — Tension and destruction mounted today in Britain's four-day old firemen's strike as militants tried to prevent hastily trained soldiers from fighting the nation's blazes.

The Home Office reported 12 fire-related deaths so far, including five children in Northern Ireland on Wednesday and today, but said none could be blamed on the walkout.

Temper flared during a London power station blaze Wednesday when nonstriking senior fire officers commandeered a foam engine from a nearby firehouse.

The strikers seized it back, but troops later moved in and drove it away.

A team of part-time reserve firemen was kicked and spat upon when answering an emergency call. Militants also sabotaged some of their own trucks Wednesday and jammed fire station doors to prevent troops from taking the equipment.

The Greater London Council, the British capital's governing body, said it blanked out a strikers' pirate radio network in retaliation for earlier jamming of a key channel linking an emergency control center with mobile firefighting units.

The Council said it also cut off telephones at striker-held firehouses.

The firemen, making an average $115 a week, want a 30 per cent pay hike. But the government refuses to back off from its counter-inflationary pay curbs limiting increases to 10 percent.

LA Brush Fire Finally Halted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A brush fire that charred 1,350 acres in the Santa Monica mountains has been halted three miles from expensive coastal homes near Malibu.

"The fire is almost dead," said Barry Helsel of the county Fire Department Wednesday night.

Exhausted firefighters put in three days of round-the-clock efforts to battle two separate blazes. The first was contained Tuesday after burning 1,200 acres, about two square miles, in Topanga Canyon, about 15 miles to the east. That fire burned down six buildings and forced evacuation of hundreds of residents.

"The weather is on our side," said Helsel. "Today was fairly warm, but the humidity came up."

The humidity had been an extremely low 18 percent during the second fire's first day, when 200 acres an hour were blackened by a wall of flames and sparks leaped from ridge to ridge and ignited the tinder dry brush.

Most of the 700 firefighters who stopped the blaze had gone home by Wednesday night, leaving fewer than 200 manning the fire camp and patrolling the hills to watch for flare-ups.

Six firefighters were injured, including 25-year-old Mike Eubanks, who underwent surgery at Westlake Hospital for multiple injuries suffered when a tractor rolled over him. The others suffered minor injuries.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

No man is free who is not master of himself. —Epictetus

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
CINCINNATI

NORTHFIELD, Mass. (AP) — To find Dan and Robin Woodard's house, you drive over a mountain on a blacktop road until the blacktop ends, drive down a rutted dirt lane until the lane ends, then you walk.

You walk and climb half a mile up a twisting, boulder-strewn path obscured by fallen leaves and pine needles, following a stream that tumbles down the steep hillside over mossy rocks. Deep in this idyllic wilderness the only sound is the brawling stream.

The house is utterly isolated among the trees, a handsome two-story house covered with weather-mellowed cedar shakes.

Nearby is an acre clearing where Dan and Robin grow their own groceries. Robin cans the produce and stores it in a root cellar. Dan built the root cellar.

Dan also built the house, sawed every board, drove every nail. He is a fine carpenter and a resourceful man; he taught himself the craft. Robin is resourceful, too, and giving. She teaches sewing one day a week in a nursing home.

Behind the house stands another tidy structure. With its two stained-glass windows, also hand-crafted by Dan, it might be a small chapel, but it is not.

It is an outhouse. The most troublesome outhouse you can imagine.

"We came here because we like the woods, the outdoors," Dan Woodard said. "We like privacy. All we want is to be left alone. Instead, for three years we've been in and out of court and it isn't over yet. All because of an outhouse."

"Sometimes it gets pretty silly. One official asks why on earth we want an outhouse and another says if we have an outhouse everybody will want one. How do you deal with that?"

Dan Woodard discusses his outhouse

House Dems Seek Redistricting

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With 1978 growing ever closer, House Democrats hoped to win approval today of a less ambitious but still politically explosive congressional redistricting bill.

The scaled down plan attempts to capture one Democratic seat in Columbus and solidify an existing Democratic-held post in Cincinnati.

In the process four districts would be redrawn, but unlike the original Senate-approved bill, Ohio's remaining 19 congressional districts would not be substantially altered.

The toned down plan did not satisfy Republicans on Wednesday, as they voted solidly against the bill when it popped out of the Governmental Affairs Committee 10-7 after lying dormant for more than two months.

With a veto by Gov. James A. Rhodes a near certainty, and a 90-day waiting period for enactment if the veto is overridden, majority Democratic leaders must move the bill this month to be sure it will take effect before the March 23 congressional filing date.

"The public has had no time to react," complained House Minority Whip Alan E. Norris, R-Westerville. "This thing has all been orchestrated behind closed doors."

In Hamilton County, the new congressional map would resemble a doughnut with Democratic Rep. Thomas A. Luken's 2nd District comprising the city of Cincinnati, while a suburban 1st District would be conceded to Republican Rep. Willis D. Gradison Jr.

Another Republican, Rep. Samuel L.

Devine, who would have been moved out of his 12th district in Franklin County, could stay at home in the revised plan that adds his suburban Bexley-Whitehall neighborhood.

But Devine would still have to run in a district with a 54 percent Democrat majority, according to state Rep. James A. Baumann, D-Columbus, a congressional hopeful who authored the amendment.

By leaving Devine's home in the 12th District, Baumann said the bill avoided "blatant gerrymandering."

Rep. Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, would be left with a solid Republican 15th district, adjusted to include northern Franklin County and Morrow and Delaware counties.

Two other changes were made in the substitute bill.

A section of Summit County, including the towns of Stow and Hudson, was moved from the 11th District (Rep. William J. Stanton, R-Ohio), to the 14th District (Rep. John F. Seiberling).

In the trade, the 11th District received a portion of Portage County, including the city of Kent, currently in the 14th.

In a separate move, Oxford Township, with a population of 1,000 in Erie County, was moved from the 17th District (Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio) to the 13th District (Rep. Donald J. Pease, D-Ohio).

The sponsor of the amendment, state Rep. Frederick H. Deering, D-Monroeville, who lives in the township, said the purpose was to unite Oxford with the rest of Erie County in the 13th District.

woes with remarkable calm. A less forgiving soul would be tearing his hair.

Dan and Robin, both in their early 30s, met at the University of California at Los Angeles. From the start, they treasured being alone. After graduation and marriage they rented a cabin far back in the redwood mountains of northern California.

They wanted their own place, though, and began a search, traveling the country unhurriedly, enjoying the scenery and each other.

In the spring of 1974 they found this spot: 96 acres of romantic mountainside with its crystal brook, ample firewood and garden clearing. No electricity, but they prefer oil lamps. It was ideal.

Dan applied for a building permit. He was told he would need a septic tank. He explained that he planned to build an outhouse.

"Not only would we have to build a road so a truck could come up with a tank, which would be terribly expensive and spoil the beauty, but we really do want an outhouse," Dan said. "An outhouse forces you to go outside even in bad weather, and once you're outside you're glad to be outside."

The town said too bad, no outhouse. Against the law. Dan was told to stop building not just the outhouse but also the house.

He wanted to finish by winter so he hired a lawyer, got a restraining order against the town and built his home. The case came up in February and the court found in his favor.

The town gave him a permit for an outhouse.

"We thought that was the end of it, but a week later the plumbing inspector arrived. He said we could have an outhouse, but the state required indoor plumbing as well, plus a washing machine hookup. Why, we don't even have electricity for a washing machine."

The inspector himself saw the absurdity, resigned rather than enforce the rule, and went with Dan to Boston to plead for a variance.

They returned and found a summons from the town for building without a permit. Dan lost that case in court but won it on appeal. The judge ruled that the town could hardly have been unaware of his plans.

"What we now have is approval in the state court but no variance from the state Board of Plumbing Examiners. That's still unsettled."

"We have the feeling we're being harassed but don't know why. I guess they think we're strange. At one hearing they kept pointing out that we were from California." He laughed. "Actually I'm from Michigan."

"We don't want to cause trouble. The last thing we want to do is bother anybody. All we want is an outhouse, just a simple outhouse."

A modest desire, Dan and Robin. Hang in there.

Our sympathy goes to the Wilbur Warner family for the death of Nancy's sister, Sarah Jane Card last Thursday.

Several from here attended the reception last Saturday night held at the Carrousel Inn, honoring Jerry Rasor (our favorite weatherman) who has become the Grand Master of the Ohio Masons. This is quite an honor for Jerry.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hott were callers in town here last Tuesday, visiting among relatives and friends.

Mrs. Marilyn Kaiser is home recuperating after spending several days in Mount Carmel hospital for tests.

I checked on Dr. Hosler last Saturday evening only to find out he's not very well and gets out very little. A card of cheer might add a little spice for the day.

Rosalee Williamson, Eva Keller and Mrs. Keister were visitors in Point Pleasant, W. Va., over the weekend.

Mrs. Katie Cook of Circleville, and known to many here, is at home recuperating from surgery in Berger Hospital a few weeks ago, but will soon be entering Mount Carmel for further tests.

Mrs. Vonna Rasor spent Saturday evening playing cards with several friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Finch of Five Points.

The sick this week are Mr. and Mrs. Wetherell who are not very well and the Rev. Wetherell who is still in the nursing home in Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wilkins, (Kathy Null), formerly of Grove City, are now residents of Circleville. Living with Kathy and Jim is Kevin Corry of Grove City, plus their new pup Kelly.

We are glad to hear that Dottie Friedenmaker's father is home from the hospital

Don't forget, folks, if you have any news, call me or send it to me.

A Page Of Opinion

Sure She Would

Jane Fonda, the former Hanoi apologist who at least had the grace after the fall of Vietnam to admit she was disappointed in the treatment accorded South Vietnam by its conquerors, has a new subject in her role as a radical activist.

In speeches on college campuses her theme now is the terrible American corporations which have learned "to manipulate the tax laws to get away from paying their fair share," and are guilty of "eliminating economic freedom in America."

It is not an original complaint within the far left, nor does Miss Fonda explain how tax laws are manipulated or define what she would consider a "fair share" of taxation. But when the actress appeared at Central Michigan University to make the speech and singled out Dow Chemical U.S.A. as one of her horrible examples, she caused an interesting reaction.

Dow had been a contributor, through grants and gifts, to CMU. But it isn't anymore. In a letter to the university's president, Dow president Paul Oreffice said CMU would receive nothing more from his company "until we are convinced our dollars are not expended for those who would destroy us."

That's fair enough. It would be interesting to hear Jane Fonda's reply if the university asked if she would like to make up the Dow grants from her own presumably considerable assets.

Population Clock Ticks On

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — A "World Population Clock" has been installed high on the side of an office building in Washington, D.C. Facing down Connecticut Avenue, so that Americans and foreign visitors can catch its message, the clock is digital and it clicks off the frightening growth of human beings born in this world.

Three persons are born every second. There are 172 people added to the world's population each minute; this is more than 10,000 an hour, and nearly a quarter-million a day!

The relentless numerical escalations of the clock are enough to give an imaginative person a severe case of claustrophobia. Not to mention vicarious hunger pains.

The Environment Fund, which sponsored the clock, has carefully documented world population estimates sheets, which show that most of the largest population increases, as might be expected by anyone with a feeling for irony, are occurring in the countries of Africa and Asia which have the lowest literacy rate, and the least resources for feeding their burgeoning people growth. In Europe and North America, with a literacy rate of 99 percent, the growth rate is low.

Population growth is a problem that has troubled the world for two decades — but the people most affected still can't understand the tragedy because they can't read.

For 15 years, research has shown that our globe is in grave trouble. The world, with a population now of more than 4 billion, 397 million, already is cramped and hungry. Even with a meager 0.5 percent growth rate of 4 percent, the world population will double in only 17 years.

Most Asian, African, Latin American and tropical South American countries have a growth rate ranging from 2.3 to 3.8 percent. So the clock may speed up in the years ahead, as death rates go down and birth rates do not.

It has been estimated that 700 years from now — if you can wait that long, and medical science is doing its best to make that waiting possible — each human being on earth will have exactly one square foot of space to him or herself. To prevent the climate from becoming dangerously chummy (one person gets a cold, the whole world catches it) there would need to be towering skyscrapers in every block of land. Just so people would have enough room to lie down.

They'd have to lie down in shifts, in any case.

Traffic conditions may be bad now, but in this foretold future, cars would be obsolete. Rockets possibly would be incapable of functioning safely, too. Even the atmosphere would be cluttered, and certainly polluted. Jacques Cousteau had better, indeed, develop his theory that men can be trained to function underwater — even grow gills. Because every square mile of ocean floor will be necessary to accommodate our descendants.

And the food problem? Americans never quite grasp the fact (as we push the buttons on our garbage-disposal units) that already two-thirds of the world's population is undernourished. We keep thinking that we can teach our agricultural technology to Asians and Africans, and that will take care of the problem when it is absolutely necessary.

But this theory overlooks the fact that in the underdeveloped countries, overloaded with humanity, farmland is already scarce and growing scarcer. As is water. And our crop surpluses, generously bestowed on the undernourished, would help relatively little. An agricultural expert has pointed out that if our crop surpluses were divided equally among the world's needy right now, each would get the equivalent of about one cup of rice a year. And by next year, those needy will have given birth to more needy. It will come down to one grain of rice per mouth, as population growth burgeons.

There is no choice but to try to help the overpopulated and backward countries, as well as ourselves, see the population explosion realistically.

We're trying. But perhaps the World Population Clock should be installed on buildings around the world, rather than only in Washington. And then teach people to tell this excruciating form of time.

The public relations job by U.S. and European environmentalists has been successful within our own environs, but it has not reached to the heart of the problem. And it has been so much slower than medical science, which daily is making discoveries to increase humankind's longevity.

Science is saving us all — for an unthinkable future.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Hold onto your wallet. 'Tis the season to be merry in the stores and all the ingenuity of the merchandising fraternity is designed to make you and your dollar welcome.

Late reports suggest that this may be an exceedingly spendthrift Christmas. Retail sales for the year are going to top $700 billion, and something like $75 billion of that is likely to be added up in December alone.

Indicating the trend, October sales leaped 1.8 per cent over the previous month, one of the strongest showings of the year. Unlike in some years, merchants don't have to set a spending mood, but merely prolong it.

Consumers seem to be in an ebullient mood. Credit is the mixer for the holiday cocktail, and consumers have been adding to their installment borrowing at a rate of $2.5 billion a month, bringing the total to about $200 billion.

Does that figure frighten you? It frightens more than a few retailers, and some bankers too, but the truth is it amounts to just 17 percent of disposable personal income, or 1 percent below the record set in 1973.

Should a sharp economic downturn occur it seems likely that some of those bills might be late in being repaid, but few economists expect such an event to take place. Meanwhile, repayments are said to be satisfactory.

Despite the complications, retailers generally are pleased to assist in the accumulation of consumer credit because, as they are ever aware, they have in the Christmas selling season about 30 of the best sales days of the year.

The consumer, on the other hand, has six times that number of days during the next year in which to work toward repaying the bills. To retailers, this adds up to a good deal, especially since many of them sell the receivable account.

Again using last year as a measure, almost all types of retail outlets except automotive dealers, who have their own special selling season, and building materials and hardware stores will share in the spending spree.

Sales of home furnishings and household appliance stores soared last Christmas season. So did sales in apparel and accessory stores, toy stores, jewelry stores, book stores, grocery stores, variety stores and liquor stores.

For some merchants the month of December is a make or break period during which they either earn profit for the year or suffer for another 11 months, during which they must dispose of their stock at vast price cuts.

This is especially true of stores specializing in toys and dolls, which to some extent have developed the concept of a fresh model every year, forcing the merchant to restock no matter how large his inventory.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My friend and I are on a kick of herbal health pills. My doctor thinks it's hogwash and that it could even be dangerous. Do you see any objection to them?

Miss M. B., Del.

Dear Miss B.:

It would be wrong if I were to dogmatically deny the value of herbal foods. Many of them have been used for years as nutritious supplements to the daily diet. Herbal foods and pills purchased from reliable dispensers can be depended on.

Every once in a while a dangerous situation arises when questionable commodities of this kind reach the public. The American Medical Association recently reported a case of accidental lead poisoning that was caused by eating herbal pills that had been given to a 59-year-old woman by a "herbalist-acupuncturist," to relieve the pains in her joints.

After a few months of taking these pills the patient developed many symptoms. When the pills were analyzed, they were found to contain an unusually high amount of lead. Only after the pills were stopped and intensive lead poisoning treatment begun did the symptoms disappear. These herbal pills had been processed in Hong Kong.

Not long ago, another case was reported, of poisoning traced to a powdered bone meal health food product that had been imported from England. Although not actually a herbal product it does indicate the need for very stringent surveillance of the entire health food industry. The Federal Drug Administration is trying desperately hard to acquire funding in order to establish more rigid rules of safety for all health food products.

A safe rule is to know your dealer, carefully read the contents of a package and to avoid getting on the bandwagon of every new highly touted health food fad.

I have a tendency to get heavy keloid scars every time I cut my skin. After an operation for my appendix, a large awful-looking scar was left. Can anything be done about this condition? It seems to run in my family.

Mrs. B.R.V., S.C.

Dear Mrs. V.:

A keloid is a formation of heavy scar tissue that some people develop at the site of an incision after surgery, or even after a laceration or burn. The exact cause is unknown, although a definite hereditary tendency usually exists.

When the formation of keloids is anticipated after surgery the wound is often treated with X-ray or cobalt therapy in order to prevent its formation. In many instances, the size of the keloid is markedly reduced.

Keloids that have already formed, as in your case, can be removed surgically, and immediately treated with X-ray and cortisone so as to reduce the chances that another keloid might form in the same site.

A number of other drugs (by injection), and cryotherapy (freezing technique) are sometimes used successfully for the reduction of the size of keloids.

Anyone who knows that he has a personal or family tendency to keloid scarring should tell this to his surgeon if an operation is contemplated.

Excessive Grain Production Threat To World Agriculture

ROME (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland told a 144-nation U.N. food conference today that excessive grain production wiping out profits is actually a threat to world agriculture despite scarcity in developing nations.

Defending the Carter administration's decision to restrict wheat acreage, Bergland said "we believe that protecting the productive capacity of U.S. agriculture is a major factor in ensuring world food security."

He said recent bumper crops increased carryover stocks, causing sharply lower prices with some grains selling on world markets below production costs.

"We believe that this situation, if it persists, will threaten the long-run production capability of world agriculture by reducing investment incentives," Bergland added.

The former Minnesota farmer said the U.S. limitation on acreage "may have been inadequately understood" and assured the conference that "these actions were taken after careful estimation that world supplies would be adequate at reasonable prices."

Currently, the secretary stated, there is no immediate pressure of world food shortages and the air of crisis that dominated the discussions of four years ago has disappeared.

Bergland also cautioned that despite the increased production the number of malnourished people remains intolerably large and little progress has been made toward the goal of eliminating malnourishment in the poorest developing countries. U.N. food experts estimate the world's hungry at around 500 million.

Bumper crops also allowed the United States, Bergland said, to establish a farmer-owned reserve program totalling 30-35 million tons and a special international food reserve of up to six million tons of wheat.

And he pledged increased U.S. food aid, saying that the U.S. contribution to international development lending institutions will be up more than double in 1978 compared with 1976.

On bilateral assistance, the secretary said U.S. aid programs will increase by $50 million over the $536 million in the last two years.

EARLY ACCIDENT — This was the scene of a two car accident that occurred at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday. According to Sgt. Ron Thompson of Post 65 of the Ohio Highway Patrol, a school bus had stopped on County Road 511 at the intersection with Marshall Road while southbound, and was getting ready to take on students. Lois Cole, 1366 Hanover Court, was northbound on County Road 511 and had stopped for the flashing red lights on the bus. A car driven by John H. Ford III, 1017

Mulberry Road, also northbound, and trailing the Cole car, apparently failed to see the auto in time to avoid a collision, and struck the auto in the rear. Ms. Cole was transported to Berger Hospital by the Circleville Emergency Squad. She suffered neck and back injuries in the accident. Troopers investigating the mishap cited Ford for failure to maintain assured clear distance ahead.

Senator Calls For Tax On Waterways Traffic

CINCINNATI (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., drew fire from the inland barge industry Wednesday by saying it was time to end free use of the nation's waterways.

"We can't afford it anymore" Baker told a news conference. He said he not only favors a fuel tax but he also believes in a users tax on cargo to pay for river improvement projects.

"We have a highway fund and we have an airport fund. It's time we had a river fund. We can't continue to take the money out of the treasury," Baker said. He said he agreed with the 1 percent user tax on cargoes proposed by Sen. John Dornan, R-Calif.

"I can't understand why he favors it," said Betty G. Justice, assistant to the president of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association which represents not only the barge industry but utilities, steel and other industries along the Ohio, Mississippi and tributary rivers.

Fahmy Resigns

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy resigned and President Anwar Sadat accepted the resignation, Egypt's Middle East News Agency said today.

The report came shortly after Sadat returned from a visit to Damascus in which he and Syrian President Hafez Assad differed over Sadat's proposed trip to Israel.

The Middle East News Agency said Fahmy's letter of resignation cited "urgent new elements which affected the situation." It gave no details, but the "new elements" appeared to be a reference to Sadat's controversial trip to Israel.

Fahmy has been a key aide of Sadat's, carrying out the Egyptian leader's negotiating strategy with Israel since the October 1973 war.

He also had been a strong proponent of Egypt's turn away from the Soviet Union and toward the United States over the past four years.

Larry Flynt Resigns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Larry Flynt, publisher of Hustle and Chic magazines, has resigned as president of Larry Flynt Publications Inc.

Flynt named his brother, Jimmy, as his successor to head the corporation.

Flynt said the "shift in corporate structure" was necessary to give him more time to "devote my attentions to bringing about social change."

Flynt said he will continue as chairman of the board of Flynt Publications and will retain editorial control of all publications.

Jimmy Flynt previously was president of Flynt Distributing Co. That post will be filled by Jack Gallagher, who also will take over as executive vice president of Flynt Publications.

Mrs. David Gillespie Presents Paper For Monday Club Meeting

Mrs. David Gillespie was introduced as the speaker for the November 14 meeting of the Monday Club, her paper "Can You Believe It?" dealt with superstitions and folklore.

She stated that superstitions are not always irrational and illogical as may be imagined. They have a reason, a background and some practical explanation. The fact is that, at one time or other everybody is a slave to superstitions. Mostly however we do not realize it or we do not want to admit it. We cleverly rationalize the meaning of superstitions and refer to them as beautiful customs.

Knocking on wood is a popular custom or superstition today. Some people after boasting, making a prediction, or speaking of good fortune knock on wood.

Mrs. Gillespie also mentioned that it is commonly held that walking under a ladder is unlucky, and that "God Bless You" is said when someone sneezes.

At one time folk medicine was used willow bark was used to relieve the pain of rheumatism. It has been found that this home remedy contained the same pain reliever as today's aspirin which is given to relieve the pain of arthritis.

It was also thought that the pain also could be relieved by carrying buckshot or a buckeye in the pocket. Today people often wear a copper bracelet to get relief from arthritis.

Mrs. Gillespie stated that she had found some people in history were very superstitious. Hitler for example, favored the number seven and planned all of his major military battles on the seventh of the month. Napoleon Bonaparte feared cats and the number 13. Winston Churchill petted black cats to obtain good luck while Harry Truman used a horseshoe over the door of his office in the White House for good luck.

The paper was closed by telling a moralizing folkstory from the Tagalong people of the Philippine Islands.

NSA Boss Night Speaker Is Frank X. Lawlor

The Roundtown Chapter of National Secretaries Association met at the Holiday Inn in Chillicothe for the Annual Bosses Night Dinner. The members and bosses enjoyed a three-meat buffet.

The speaker was Frank X. Lawlor of the Employee Relations Department of E. I. DuPont de Nemours. He is an advisor on alcoholism and alcoholism in industry. Maurice DuPont Lee started the alcohol in industry program. Mr. Lawlor himself was an alcoholic. He stated that alcoholism is a hereditary disease. He said that traces of alcohol are in the brain up until 28 days after alcohol is removed from the body. He said that there were only three releases from alcoholism: death, insanity and abstinence.

This alcohol program is AA oriented. ALAnon helps with the family. Mr. Lawlor said that alcoholism makes a person ill in three ways: spiritually, emotionally, and physically. He also says that if treatment is properly done and the person treated with dignity the alcoholic can recover. He also said that women recover better and faster than men if treated on an equal basis. The program that DuPont has so far allows 81 percent of those worked with to keep their jobs.

Judge Guy C. Cline, the 1976 Boss of the Year, reflected on his past year.

Jean West presented the 1977 Boss of the Year to the membership. The 1977 Boss of the Year is Donna Gloyd, Operator Service Manager of General Telephone Company. The secretary sponsoring her was Freda Collins.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail VanBuren

Thinks She Might Be A Grandmother

DEAR ABBY: I'm still in shock from a telephone call I just received from a young woman informing me that I had an 18-month-old granddaughter! I was speechless. My only child is a 25-year-old college graduate. He's not married, not living at home, and he works 600 miles away. I see him only three times a year.

I phoned him and told him about the disturbing call I had just received. He calmly said, "It's possible." Then he told me he doesn't see the girl anymore, he's never seen the baby, and he has no plans to.

The baby's mother says she is 25 and still loves my son, but they decided a marriage wouldn't work out.

Abby, can I be a grandmother if my son accepts no responsibility for this child? The young mother invited me to visit her and see the baby.

Will I complicate matters if I go?

STILL IN SHOCK
DEAR STILL: First, get together with your son and find out why he is treating the matter so casually. From what he says, he may not even be the baby's father. Once his legal and moral obligation in this situation have been established, you can decide what role you want to assume-if any.

DEAR ABBY: You were too quick to agree with a RIPPED OFF, who complained because a co-worker had bought a purse for a fellow worker as a gift from the office gang and claimed it cost $21. RIPPED OFF later learned that the purse had been marked $16.98!

Consider these figures, Abby:
$16.98 purse
1.02 6 per cent sales tax
2.00 fancy gift wrap
1.00 gift card
Total $21.00

This doesn't include the time spent shopping or the cost of transportation. And the poor woman probably skipped her lunch to boot.

This should serve as a warning to others who shop for a group: Get receipts for everything!

NO RIPP OFF
DEAR NO: You're right. I shot from the hip on that one. Rip off my epaulets and demote me to buck private.

DEAR ABBY: My heart aches today for my 14-year-old daughter who went to a school dance last evening and wasn't asked to dance one dance.

When her older brother was her age, and popular with the crowd, I always encouraged him to ask the not-so-popular girls to dance, impressing upon him how much it could mean to a girl who might not otherwise receive

BGSU Prof Says Parents Responsible For Children

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — A Bowling Green University professor has a suggestion for parents who complain their kids are seduced by television commercials for sugar coated cereals: "Why not teach parents how to prepare more nutritional breakfasts?" asks Dr. Maurice Mandell, author of "Advertising." Mandell says parents, not television, should be blamed for children's eating habits. "Parents are responsible for the welfare of their children," Mandell said in a recent interview. "I'm getting pretty exasperated with social reformers who blame ills on all instead of those closest to the problem." "If they (children) are watching Saturday morning television with a bowl of sugarcoated cereal in front of them, it's because their parents are still in bed, maybe with a hangover, and the TV has become a babysitter." Although the public generally views advertising as being manipulative, Mandell said it can't make consumers buy what they don't want. Lobbyists who want to curb cereal commercials on television aimed at youngsters are using advertising as the scapegoat, he said. Advocates for banning the ads claim the commercials lead children to eat too much sugar. Mandell, who said nutritionists disagree over the effects of sugar, said manufacturers "make what people want and they advertise sugar-coated cereals because children naturally want something sweet." He said the advertiser will promote within the legal confines whatever is easiest to promote, and in the case of many cereals, that is sweetness of taste.

"Certainly one can be critical of advertising, but to say all advertising is bad because some advertisements are bad, is like saying that all doctors are bad because some are quacks, or that all lawyers are bad because some are ambulance chasers."

Eliminating all television advertising would be at the expense of consumers, Mandell said. He said even though cigarette ads were banned from television, tobacco companies have increased their advertising in newspapers and magazines which

Legislation To Clarify Voter Registration Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown will offer legislation next January to clarify Ohio's voter registration law, which was altered drastically by passage of Issue 1 last week.

Hair Dyes May Cause Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says it appears there is no longer any doubt that a chemical used in permanent hair dyes causes cancer.

An FDA spokesman said Tuesday the National Cancer Institute has informed FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy that the chemical, 4-methoxym-phenylenediamine, has been identified as a cancer-causing agent in NCI animal studies.

"We're looking at the regulatory questions on the assumption that the institute's final data will be positive," the spokesman said. "We have every assurance from NCI that that is the case."

An industry spokeswoman said the chemical has no substitute and is necessary to facilitate the dyeing process, which involves bleaching out the natural hair color and substituting an artificial one.

Permanent hair dyes can't be washed out by semi-permanent dyes or color rinses. A person's hair remains the dyed color until it grows out or is replaced by another permanent dye.

A month ago, Kennedy told reporters he had asked the institute to expedite its testing of the suspect hair dyes. But he said he would wait for the institute's final report before taking regulatory action as demanded by the Environmental Defense Fund.

While some analysis remains to be done, the FDA spokesman said Tuesday, the commissioner has been told that the cancer-causing property of the long-used coal tar dye is no longer in doubt.

The spokesman said FDA is now considering two fundamental questions:

—Is the study, which involved feeding high doses of the chemical to laboratory rats and mice, a reliable indicator that humans who apply it to their hair and scalp run the risk of contracting cancer?

—And if it is determined that a cancer danger does exist for the millions of people who use the dyes, what action can the agency take against products that have enjoyed a special form of congressional immunity for 40 years?

The FDA spokesman said the agency has determined that 3 to 6 percent of the chemical is absorbed by the body through the scalp during normal use of a permanent hair dye, the type generally used to change, rather than enhance, one's natural hair color.

The cosmetics industry, however, rejects the test on 4-methoxy-m-phenylenediamine as irrelevant and cites numerous other studies, including a 13-year survey of 5,000 beauticians that have failed to produce statistically significant evidence that the dyes cause cancer in humans.

Even if the FDA concludes the dyes pose a hazard to consumers, it can't ban them as it attempted to do with saccharin before Congress intervened earlier this year.

Under a 1938 law, coal tar hair dyes, as those containing suspect chemical are called, are specifically exempt from FDA's usual regulatory powers, except that the agency retains authority over their labeling.

few unanswered questions about procedures, particularly with regard to the new requirement for a purge every four years of registration rolls.

Under the new amendment to the Ohio Constitution, voters must cast their ballot at least once every four years or be dropped from the rolls.

The instant registration law had no voting requirement for maintaining the franchise, but up until this year, a vote at least once every two years was the standard for continuing registration.

The question now is, when does the four years start — anytime in 1977, retroactive to Nov. 8, or on Dec. 8, when the amendment actually becomes part of the constitution?

"It will be our position that the four years means four calendar years," said Assistant Secretary of State James Marsh. That means a vote anytime in 1977 would satisfy the requirement, including a vote on Nov. 8 following an instant registration.

The secretary of state's bill will propose that local boards of election mail postcards to voters about to be purged from the rolls. This practice was followed under the two-year renewal plan, but was dropped with the advent of permanent registration.

The legislation will also address the sensitive issue of the voting rights of the mentally ill.

Brown believes probate judges should make a specific court determination as to whether a mentally ill person is competent to vote, rather than just rule on their overall competency.

The secretary of state is also preparing a separate bill to broaden the existing state "dirty tricks" law so that it applies to campaigns involving constitutional issues, as well as to candidates.

"This legislation should clearly be amended to include all campaigns to prevent the type of misleading and erroneous information that has been spread over Ohio's air waves," Brown said, without naming the offenders.

Television spots for and against Issue 1 and those on both sides of defeated Issue 2 to ban leghold animal traps created considerable controversy during the closing weeks of the campaign.

Carter To Leave On Trip In December

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will leave on the first segment of his postponed overseas trip between Christmas and New Year's, a top aide says.

The second half of the tour will take place "in late spring if it can be worked out," Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser, said Tuesday.

Brzezinski said Carter will visit the nine countries on his itinerary before he postponed the journey to lobby for passage of his energy bill. He declined to list the new schedule.

The countries are Venezuela, Brazil, Nigeria, Saudi Arabia, India, Iran, France, Poland and Belgium.

Personal Income Increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans increased their personal income by the largest amount in seven months in October, as factory workers increased their wages and government salaries rose, the Commerce Department said today.

Total personal income rose 1.3 percent in October, after rising 0.8 percent in September and 0.6 percent in August, the department said. The October increase was the largest since a 1.5 percent increase in March.

The $22.2-billion increase in October put total personal income for the month at $1 trillion, 580.9 billion, at a seasonally adjusted annual rate.

Private wages and salaries increased $10.1 billion in October after rising $6.7 billion in September.

A 7 percent federal pay increase that took effect Oct. 1 helped overall government wages and salaries increase by $4.2 billion in October, compared with $1.5 billion in September. The raises for federal civilian and military personnel accounted for $2.8 billion of the boost.

Manufacturing payrolls rose $3.8 billion in October, after rising $1.8 billion in September. About two-thirds of this increase was accounted for by an increase in average hourly earnings from $5.36 to $5.41 per hour. Employment also increased, and the average work week rose from 36.0 to 36.1 hours.

Payrolls in the durable goods industries accounted for most of the increase, with transportation equipment, electrical and non-electrical machinery and fabricated and primary metals showing the biggest gains.

Kindergarteners Grill Police Chief

HOUSTON (AP) — Harry Caldwell thought it was tough being chief of the Houston Police Department until he faced 180 kindergarten and first grade pupils at Briargate Elementary School.

Caldwell said he agreed to wear his spiffy chief's uniform — traditionally worn only at ceremonies — and was feeling pretty important when the children began grilling him.

The first few questions were mild. Had he ever shot anyone? Do policemen have to go to school?

Then came the zinger. "How come you ain't found my bicycle?" asked one pupil. "He just didn't understand my manpower shortage," said Caldwell.

Bessie Rife visited Mr. and Mrs. William Biggs Sunday.

Volunteers For Youth Meet At Red Cross

The Board of Trustees of Pickaway County Volunteers for Youth met 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at their new location in the Red Cross Building 114 Watt Street.

Volunteer Coordinator Ramona Edman reported that five new people have requested applications to become members of Volunteers for Youth.

Nominating Committee Chairman Jim Edman noted that a slate of trustees and officers has been selected and will be voted upon at the annual meeting to be held Wednesday, November 16.

Board President Diane Berger expressed appreciation toward Juvenile Judge Guy Cline and the Pickaway County Commissioners for the recent increase in probation officer salaries.

Revised application forms have been printed for distribution to prospective volunteers. Two-hundred copies of the three page forms were presented to the board by Marsha Schneider.

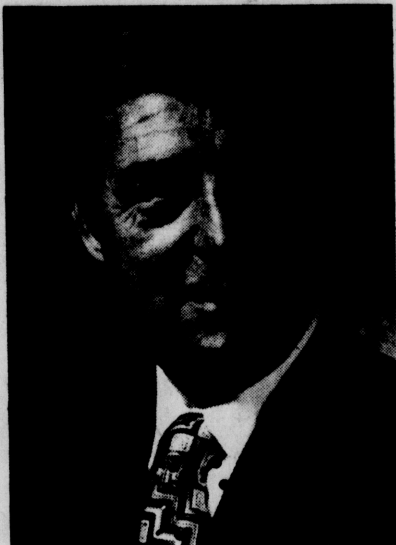

The board unanimously approved Ramona Edman's request to purchase several additional books for the VFY library which will be helpful for both volunteers and parents of probationers.

Ms. Edman noted that she will attend the Ohio Council of Churches workshop on status offenders at the Carousel Inn, Columbus, November 18 and 19.

The possibility of working with youth who have not yet come before the Juvenile Court was again discussed. Tom Tootle expressed the opinion that, according to the by-laws of the organization as stated, it would be possible to include pre-trial cases within the program. Board members unanimously expressed the desire to expand the program to include such youth, but it was noted that the number of volunteers available does not meet current needs. Such an expansion would require even more volunteers.

Former Firestone Official's Trial Set

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge on Wednesday set Jan. 18 for trial here of Robert P. Beasley, former vice-chairman of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., on a 40-count indictment charging diversion to his own benefit of about $1 million from corporate funds.

The indictment, filed Oct. 25 in U.S. District Court at Manhattan, asserted that Beasley, 63, of Akron, Ohio, used a score of bank accounts in Akron, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Nashville to defraud Firestone. Beasley formerly controlled an unlawful program of political contributions.

Beasley, who on Nov. 3 formally denied the charges of using the funds for personal spending, is free without bail.

U.S. District Judge Milton Pollack set the trial date after a pre-trial conference.

Arctic Resources To Be Discussed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Scientists specializing in the arctic will discuss the development of Arctic resources, including the proposed Alaskan-Canadian natural gas pipeline, during a two-day session at Ohio State University Dec. 20-21.

Highlights of the session include a panel discussion and a talk by Justice Thomas R. Berger of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, Vancouver, B.C.

Berger will discuss his experiences in preparing a report for the Canadian government on the proposed pipeline along the Mackenzie River.

The meeting at Fawcett Center for Tomorrow is sponsored by the Arctic Institute of North America, Calgary, Alberta and OSU's Institute of Polar Studies.

Complain Now

NEW YORK (AP) — If a customer has a complaint about a meal or service in a restaurant, it should be voiced on the spot, according to an American Express survey of eating establishments.

The owners and their employees said they respected customers who let their criticisms be known more than the ones who leave unhappy, vowing never to return. But most people fall into the latter category, the survey showed, making it difficult to correct errors and improve customer relations.

Many of the owners of managers who responded to the questionnaire said they felt customers should be respectful and tolerant of the restaurant's problems, but they should not allow themselves to be intimidated.

Other customer traits restaurateurs admired included loyalty, requesting separate checks before ordering, controlling children and drinking with moderation.

Lawmakers Look Into School Financing

The Circleville Herald, Thursday November 17, 1977

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio lawmakers early next year will look into a school financing plan that could help bail out ailing school districts and considerably reduce local property taxes.

The plan would earmark 95 percent of the income tax and all lottery revenue for schools.

"I am convinced that Ohioans have had it with the present system of funding public education, which relies heavily on property taxes," Rep. John E. Johnson, D-Orrville, said Wednesday at a news conference announcing the proposal.

Johnson wants to limit property taxes collected for school operations to 15 mills, while adjusting income tax rates to put a heavier burden on those in high income brackets.

The Ohio Education Association, representing 85,000 teachers, reacted with cautious optimism to the sweeping plan.

"We need to know that it will produce the amount of money ascribed and that it will, on a continuing basis, reflect inflation," said OEA spokesman John Hall. "If it does, then we'd have to take a very hard look at it."

Majority Democratic legislative leaders were non-committal about the plan, but House Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-Bourneville, is a co-sponsor, and that assures that it will receive hearings.

The Johnson plan, to be implemented in part by a constitutional amendment, would create a Basic Education Fund, fueled by the lottery, 95 percent of the income tax and corporate franchise tax, and some local property taxes.

The fund would assure each school district $1,700 per pupil in the 1979-80 school year, while generally reducing property taxes, according to Johnson.

Average current expenditures are $1,185 per pupil, the Wayne County lawmaker said, but 190 districts spend less than $900 per pupil and all big city districts, except Dayton, are under $1,500.

Johnson said Ohio's general fund, the source of revenue for most state needs, would lose no more than 4 percent or $150 million, as a result of the transfer of the income and corporate franchise taxes to the education fund.

He would eliminate the 10 percent property tax rollback, repeal tangible personal property taxes for all but utilities, and establish a system assuring that no one pays more than a fixed percentage of their income for real property taxes.

The real estate tax would be limited to 25 mills unless voters agreed to more. Ten mills of that total tax load would be distributed locally. The remainder would go to the state Basic Education Fund, with the exception of tax dollars collected on residential and agricultural property, which also would be spent locally, along with the remaining 5 percent of the state income tax.

Property taxes from industrial commercial and utility sources, then, would still go to schools after the first 10 mills collected.

Johnson has a long road ahead of him. He will attempt first to win legislative approval for placing the amendment on the November 1978 ballot, while at the same time pressing for a legislative package to accompany the ballot issue.

"When schools are closed for lack of money and are forced to operate perpetually in the shadow of such disaster, Ohio does not have a school system that is thorough and efficient," Johnson said.

"I am proposing a constitutional amendment and statutory legislation to secure such a system of education for every school child in this state. The package will be self-executing if the voters approve it."

Johnson's proposed income tax brackets range from 1 percent on income of up to $5,000, with a 1 percent increase for each additional $5,000 of income, up to 10 percent on earnings over $45,000.

"Ohio's rank in state per capita personal income tax collections for fiscal year 1975 was eighth from the lowest, and in state and local per capita property tax receipts for 1975, it is 23rd from the lowest," Johnson said.

"This proposal would increase the personal income tax burden until Ohio ranked 24th from the bottom, and decrease the property tax burden until Ohio ranked 15th from the bottom," he said.

Ohio Gets LEAA

Anti-Crime Grant

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has been awarded $14.1 million to fund anti-crime programs, improve the state's criminal justice system and support corrections programs.

Some $12.6 million of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant will be used to fund anti-crime programs, while $1.5 million will be used for corrections programs.

at a gala fund-raiser devoid of just one thing — his formal announcement as a candidate.

However, the 68-year-old Rhodes left little doubt Wednesday night before a glittering overflow crowd in the Lausche Building at the state fairgrounds that he's off and running.

Nearly 3,000 persons spent $100 apiece to sip fruit punch and nibble cookies with the governor, as well as with some notable entertainers who included the new Miss America, Susan Perkins of Middletown, and Cincinnati television talk show host Bob Braun, with his cast of singers. About 1,000 others bought tickets but didn't attend.

Humor was added during an hour-long musical program when five normally dignified Rhodes cabinet members joined curvaceous Coleen Sharp of the Braun entourage for a soft shoe routine and some slightly off key warbling.

But it was Rhodes' night, and his throng of admirers stood to give him a long ovation as he appeared on stage and then decided to drop to his feet a prepared speech which he said "just didn't come from the heart."

Instead, the nation's oldest governor gave a speech that outlined Ohio's problems, and he asked for prayers to help him find solutions. He dwelled particularly on the plight of the state's unemployed steel workers and said he feared bleak Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays for them unless "someone helps them find a job."

At one point, the governor came close to apologizing for not making a campaign announcement, and said "I love being governor ... I love to do things for people." But he said "I think getting jobs for people is more important than the Democratic and Republican parties combined."

Rhodes said that while some may have anticipated an announcement, "we're not going to make up our minds until about Feb. 15 — that week. I want to be governor and I don't want to be held down by unnecessary political activity between now and Feb. 15. We hope that you will help us between now and then by helping us do all that we can for the unemployed of this state.

Former Ohio Republican Chairman Kent B. McGough of Lima acted as master of ceremonies for the 2½-hour "testimonial snack," as one observer called it. He announced that while only about 3,000 attended, "we expect we will have more than $400,000 after we have counted the money and get it to the bank."

Martin A. Janis, director of aging, joined natural resources Director Robert Teater and others for the soft shoe dancing, with Rhodes chuckling beneath the footlights.

Even a handful of Democrats appeared, including Reps. George D. Tablack, D-Campbell, and Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese, D-Cleveland. Rhodes had attended a night earlier a downtown hotel reception honoring Calabrese for his 25 years in the General Assembly.

Bingo Law Revised

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State senators have returned to the House a heavily amended bill revising Ohio's charitable bingo law, and the action promises to lead to a joint conference committee study.

House sponsors who sat in on the four-hour debate — twice as long as Senate debate on the multi-billion dollar state budget — said almost immediately they probably will demand that the bill be sent to a conference committee.

Before voting 30-3 to return to measure, senators disagreed on the merits of more than a dozen floor amendments, most of them seeking to permit more organizations to sponsor games.

They also had doubts whether the overall thrust of the legislation will be, as intended, to thwart operations of professional gamblers who have run bingo and other games of chance under the guise of being charitable groups.

Sen. Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-Columbus, the floor sponsor, asserted the amendments open up the law too much and demanded that his name be removed from the bill.

Rep. J. Leonard Camera, D-Lorain, who sponsored it in the House, expressed a similar view and indicated he will ask that it be sent to a joint conference committee to iron out differences.

On two different occasions during the debate, the bill barely survived motions to re-refer it to the judiciary committee for further study. Each motion lost 17-16.

Among the amendments approved were those which would add non-profit, physically handicapped, youth athletic parks, and services for delinquent youth to churches, fraternal, service, and other organizations already permitted to obtain bingo licenses from the attorney general.

Senate Judiciary Chairman Mariogene Valiquette, D-Toledo, although supporting the immediately effective emergency measure finally, complained that the law had been opened to "dancing lessons, French lessons, and lobbying," among other non-charitable activities. The Senate had stretched its definition of charity "beyond all imagination," she charged.

Otherwise, the bill beefs up the powers of the attorney general to inspect premises where bingo games are played, and tightens language under which professional gamblers in several Ohio cities have conducted bingo and other gambling under the guise of being charitable organizations.

The Senate rejected amendments which would have permitted games for "youth activities," and allowed bingo operators to pay reasonable compensation to employees assisting in running games, among others.

ODT Ready For Winter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Transportation is prepared if this winter's snowfall should be a repeat of last year's record average state accumulation of 61 inches.

For the past month, DOT crews around the state have conducted "dry runs" in DOT garages in preparation for the coming battle against ice and snow.

Both the rolling stock and personnel had to pass point-by-point inspection. Each piece of equipment—about 4,100 snow plows—must work properly and each employee fully understand snow-removal procedures.

George Nelms, chief engineer of operations, indicated that this year's battle-plan won't differ drastically from the 1976-77 program.

"Everyone associated with last winter says it was the worst in the history of the department," said Nelms. "The department did a fantastic job last winter... When you get a snowfall like we had, and you clear it out in just a week, you've got a good operation. Why change it?"

Previous record snowfalls in 1937 and 1950 took up to a month to fully clear, Nelms pointed out.

Nelms said DOT's emergency center, which coordinated snow-removal operations by the Ohio National Guard, county highway departments, townships, contractors and DOT crews statewide last winter, is ready for instant mobilization. More contracts have been signed with "stand-by" contractors should a severe snow hit and additional help be needed.

DOT Maintenance Chief Ron Zook said the department has stocked additional salt supplies, along with more "grit" — boiler cinders, gravel and sand to improve traction when its too cold for the road salt to melt snow and ice.

Zook said DOT could muster 4,100 drivers, mechanics, radio operators, and other support employees if necessary.

In estimating the cost of the snow and ice-clearing activities, Zook said labor and equipment cost for last winter was $16.5 million, but that an average winter could cost between $12 million and $14 million.

"It's hard to describe an average winter," Zook said when asked what's an "average" winter. "It just depends on how much it snows."

DOT officials urged public cooperation with road crews in the coming months.

Each year incidents of drivers slamming into the rear of slower moving plows, or sideswiping equipment while attempting to pass under slippery conditions are reported, Mack said.

"What we'd like is for motorists to exercise a little more patience and caution when encountering snowplows," said Herb Mack, deputy director of DOT's district office in Delaware. "After all, we are on the road trying to help them by clearing ice and snow."

Middle and upper elementary students in search of some different nonfiction will find an assortment of topics covered by our other new books. "Spinoffs from Space" describes some of the inventions resulting from the space program that have proved useful on earth. Widely spaced 24-point type and color pictures make this title accessible and appealing for grades 3+-. (600)

"The Blue Angels" provides an interesting history of the Navy's flight demonstration team and discusses the planes they fly, support members of the group, and the training and daily routine of the pilots themselves. Grades 4-5+ (359.9)

By popular nonfiction author Edward Radlauer, "Boats" introduces various types of boats and boat models discussing their uses and ways of handling them. Grades 3+-. (797.1)

Parseghian Suggests Bowl Revisions

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

For years, while head coach at Notre Dame, Ara Parseghian advocated a formula for deciding an official national champion in college football but saw his efforts end in frustration and stagnation.

The bowls were too deeply entrenched. They were too jealous of their vast civic and commercial enterprises to permit any infringement on their domain.

With no definitive plan for the bowl lineups, the year-end galas often proved useless in determining an undisputed No. 1 team. Thus the job was left to the polls, which frequently only compounded the controversy over superiority.

Now the college season is heading toward its climax with a veritable stampede of contenders storming toward the wire and a jam-up almost certain to fire regional passions and dissent.

Parseghian, now in private business but retaining a feel for the game as ace ABC commentator, has a suggestion for avoiding such chaos.

"Why not extend the bowl deadline another week, to Nov. 26?" he said from his office in South Bend, Ind. "It wouldn't be as good as having a championship playoff but at least it would add a little respectability to the rankings."

Notre Dame, No. 6 in The Associated Press poll and a prime bowl prospect, happens to be of the same mind.

The Fighting Irish apparently will have the choice of playing No. 1 Texas in the Cotton Bowl or No. 2 Alabama in the Sugar Bowl with a victory abetting a bid for the national crown.

The trouble is, under the National Collegiate Athletic Association guidelines, the various bowls are allowed to start dipping into the pot of goodies after Saturday's contests, leaving both top-ranked Texas and No. 2 Alabama with tough rivals to play Nov. 26. Texas plays Texas A&M and Alabama faces formidable Auburn.

"Look at the circumstances that can arise," Parseghian said. "When Notre Dame ended its boycott of the bowls eight years ago it did so with the understanding that it would accept a post-season bid only if it could enhance its position nationally.

"Suppose Notre Dame chooses to play Texas in Dallas. Should Texas lose to A&M — a possibility — the Longhorns would drop to fifth or sixth place in the polls, rendering the game of little national significance.

"On the other hand, suppose Notre Dame chooses to take on Alabama in the Sugar Bowl. Texas then probably would play the loser of the Ohio State-Michigan game. If Texas should lose, then there might well be four teams with 9-1 records, all with a claim to the national championship.

"This might be avoided with a week's delay of the picking date."

Here's how the bowl picture stacks up at the moment: Rose — Ohio State 9-1 or Michigan 9-1 vs. UCLA 7-3 or Washington 6-4; Cotton — Texas 9-0 vs. Notre Dame (9-1); Sugar — Alabama 9-1 vs. OSU-Michigan loser; Orange — Oklahoma 9-1 or Nebraska 8-2 vs. Penn State 9-1 or Pittsburgh 8-1-1.

"Conceivably," commented Parseghian, "Ohio State, Texas, Notre Dame and Alabama could end up with equivalent won-loss records. Now who is national champion?"

"The picture could be simplified somewhat with a week's delay in the bowl deadline. All it needs is for somebody to take the bull by the horns."

Parseghian and his contemporary commentator, former Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles, led a coaches' move a few years ago to devise a playoff system which would utilize all of the major bowls. Plans were worked out for 16, eight and even four teams. None ever got past the drawing board.

In 1970, when Penn State challenged Texas' No. 1 ranking, Ara suggested the formation of a Challenge Bowl involving two top teams chosen by a panel of athletic directors, coaches and writers. It died a "bornin'."

The NCAA provides championship playoffs for every sport except football, which has become a gigantic guessing game.

"It makes sense to hold up selection until the end of the season," Parseghian said. "But I don't expect it. The bowls get panicky. The teams get antsy. They're like a girl waiting for the junior prom."

Pacers Win Game, Lose Player

By The Associated Press

The Indiana Pacers unexpectedly won a basketball game and unexpectedly lost a player Wednesday night.

While Indiana, the last-place team in the Midwest Division of the National Basketball Association, was upsetting Portland's defending league champions, 111-104, fiery guard John Williamson became upset and walked out on the Pacers.

Williamson, eighth in the NBA in scoring this season with a 23.8 average, disappeared during halftime after collecting only four points in 17 minutes in the first two periods.

"I have no comment on John Williamson," a stunned Indiana Coach Bob Leonard said after the game. "I'm going to keep it strictly a team matter and won't have any public comment about the situation now. After we practice Thursday, I'll have something to say."

Asked if Williamson would be at practice, Leonard replied, "I don't know."

While Williamson was vanishing into the night, the Pacers' offense and defense were shining brightly.

Dan Roundfield came off the bench and led Indiana with a career-high 29 points. Adrian Dantley scored 26 and Ricky Sobers contributed 21.

Meanwhile, the Pacers held Portland to nine points below its season's average in handing the Trail Blazers only their third loss in 13 games.

"We beat the world champs," Leonard said on a more cheery note after Indiana's first victory ever over the Trail Blazers. "It gives us a thrill."

Reserve Larry Steele paced Portland with 21 points and Bill Walton scored 20.

In other NBA games, the Boston Celtics routed the Atlanta Hawks 131-105, the Philadelphia 76ers downed the Seattle SuperSonics 101-96, the Buffalo Braves topped the Houston Rockets 101-87, and the Milwaukee Bucks beat the New Jersey Nets 116-106.

Celtics 131, Hawks 105

The Celtics, after a shaky 1-3 start this season, won their third straight game and handed the slumping Hawks, 8-5, their fourth loss in a row. Rookie Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell and Tom Boswell each scored 20 points for Boston. Atlanta's John Drew, who tallied 25.

76ers 101, Sonics 96

Julius Erving's 28 points helped the surging 76ers win their sixth game in seven outings since Billy Cunningham replaced Gene Shue as coach. The victory gave the 76ers an overall record of 8-5 and moved them into a first-place tie with the New York Knicks in the Atlantic Division.

Braves 101, Rockets 97

Billy Knight's 38 points and Randy Smith's 29 enabled Buffalo to overcome a brilliant performance by Houston's Moses Malone, who had a career-high 36 points and 29 rebounds.

"He (Malone) can be better than he was tonight," said Rockets Coach Tom Nissalke. "It's hard to believe, isn't it, especially when you realize he should be a senior in college."

Bucks 116, Nets 106

Dave Meyers' 29 points and 12 rebounds keyed Milwaukee's victory over the Nets, who were led by Kevin Porter's 26 points and 14 assists. New Jersey Coach Kevin Loughery, after being ejected with 41 seconds remaining following his second technical foul, angrily drop-kicked the ball toward the basket.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Centerville's Bob Gregg, who took a team picked to finish third in its own league to a second straight 10-0 season, is The Associated Press' Southwestern Class AAA Coach of the Year in Ohio prep football.

An area panel of sports writers makes the annual selections.

The Southwestern District's Class AA coaching honors were split between Steve Rasso of Cincinnati Mariemont and Urbana's Ray DeCola. Rasso turned Mariemont's program around. DeCola's team has won 21 straight games.

In Class A, Doug Krause of Hamilton New Miami was the top area coach.

Linebacker Bob Crable, the heart of top-ranked Cincinnati Moeller's vaunted defense, earned Class AAA Southwestern Back of the Year while Joe Smith, a 6-foot-4, 265-pound Cincinnati Colerain defensive tackle, was the No. 1 lineman.

Chris Stokes, who quarterbacked Urbana's 10 straight triumphs this season, was the area's Class AA Back of the Year. Kevin Bates, 6-4, 220-pound tackle and leader of unbeaten Cincinnati Wyoming's defense, was the leading AA lineman.

In A, Middletown Fenwick junior Rob Harkrader, following in the footsteps of brother Mike, was the top back with 23 touchdowns and more than 1,000 yards rushing. The Class A lineman was Doug Carr, South Charleston Southeastern's 6-4, 200-pound sure-handed end.

White House Publicity Gimmick Backfires

WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember when aides to resigned President Nixon deluged him with trumped-up congratulatory telegrams after one of his televised addresses to the nation on the Vietnam War?

The deception was uncovered, which did nothing to advance Nixon's fading fortunes.

When President Carter made a similar address last week, on his energy program, White House assistants thought they had devised a better way to do some tub-thumping on behalf of their boss.

They invited about a score of Democratic Senate-House energy conferees to watch the speech on television monitors set up in a White House conference room.

Afterwards, Press Secretary Jody

Grange News

SALT CREEK GRANGE
The Saltcreek Valley Grange met last Tuesday evening to plan for the Christmas activities and to confer the first degree of the order during the regular business meeting. Hosts for the session were Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Wolfe.

Following the opening ritual, the grange officers presented the degree work as part of the yearly plans of the organization. During the evening meeting, the group made plans for the next meeting on December 6, when the annual carry-in dinner will be held at 7 p.m., followed by the program and the gift exchange. The program will be arranged by Randy Wolfe, lecturer, and the annual lunch committee chairman, Barbara McKenzie, will arrange for the decorations.

The grange will serve the food during the sale of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Timmons this Saturday, and currently the grange is taking orders for pecans which are sold each year.

Mention was made of the annual youth conference to be held during Thanksgiving weekend with all granges in the county cooperating for the evening meal.

Neal Wolfe reviewed the county-wide officers conference held the past weekend and led a discussion about projects to be completed during the year.

Paul Dunkle, delegate to the Ohio State Convention gave the report of legislative procedures of the organization and reviewed the status and plans of the state-wide organization as presented during the convention.

Organized Sportsmen Have Clout

By JIM DAUBEL
For The Associated Press

Suddenly, and against all reasonable odds, organized sportsmen have achieved a degree of clout that never seemed possible on the Ohio political scene.

Nobody from either side, and certainly none of the so-called expert poll watcher, anticipated the overwhelming defeat of Issue 2 last week.

"Don't let anybody kid you," observed Jim Glass after the leghold trap ban was trounced. "Nobody, including me, ever thought the issue would go down by a landslide like this."

Glass is vice chairman of Ohioans for Wildlife Conservation (OWC), the organization which, in less than eight months, organized the grass roots effort which spearheaded opposition to Issue 2.

Contrary to the popular view, however, OWC's success was an overnight sensation in name only. The real story began five years ago when Glass, virtually on his own, established the Wildlife Legislative Fund (WLF).

The WLF received its first statewide exposure in this column on March 3, 1974. It was Glass' idea to create a nonprofit fund, governed by independent directors, that would be available to finance lobbying and legal moves on behalf of wildlife.

The WLF gained its greatest recognition by organizing the opposition to an ill-fated attempt in 1975 to push a leghold trap ban through the Ohio General Assembly. Those ongoing skirmishes and the battle over dove hunting helped the WLF and other sportsmen groups become better organized than ever.

The Ohioans for Wildlife Conservation, a logical extension of the WLF, was formed specifically to respond to the drive to pass Issue 2.

Some statistics on that controversy show how successful Glass' organization really was.

County campaign units were established by OWC in all 88 counties. They raised nearly $400,000, most of which went into the OWC's total campaign chest of some $600,000, Glass said.

That contrasts with $930,000 spent in support of Issue 2 by only one of several groups, the International Fund for Animal Welfare with headquarters in British Columbia. Glass estimates $1.2 million was spent by all anti-trapping interests to get Issue 2 on the ballot and on the campaign to pass it.

Glass predicted the issue would be defeated by a 56 percent margin. It lost by a lopsided 63-37 percent spread.

Surprising to some, the issue lost both in metropolitan and rural areas, although by much larger margins in the latter.

Ashville PTA Sets Speech On Hyperactivity

Ashville Elementary P.T.A. members and any interested persons will hear a speech and see a film Monday on hyperactive children.

William Heward, Ohio State University representative, will be the speaker. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the school. Everyone is welcome to hear about hyperactive children.

Bob Evans Named To OSU Board

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Robert L. Evans of Gallipolis, president of Bob Evans Farms Inc. and its restaurant subsidiary, was named by Gov. James A. Rhodes Wednesday to the Ohio Board of Regents.

Evans succeeds Marvin L. Warner of Cincinnati, who resigned from the board Oct. 31 after being appointed U.S. ambassador to Switzerland.

Evans will serve the remainder of Warner's unexpired term, which runs to Sept. 20, 1981. Full terms on the board are for nine years.

The Board of Regents plans and coordinates budgetary matters for state-assisted colleges and universities. Evans formerly served on the executive board of Rio Grande College. He attended Greenbrier Military School and Ohio State University.

Cuyahoga (Cleveland) and Hamilton (Cincinnati) counties, where massive support for the amendment was anticipated, did pass the issue but only by a total of 22,261 votes out of 749,105 cast. And overall, voters in the eight major metropolitan areas of Ohio, where the issue's heaviest backing was expected, defeated the measure by a 56 percent majority.

Glass said the strongly organized network of county committees will remain intact in hopes of exerting influence over matters of continuing interest to sportsmen.

Already there is talk of having the OWC pressure for mandatory hunter safety training, licensing of trappers and recovering interest on wildlife funds that is now deposited in the Ohio general fund.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Neither fear to step into a new changed picture, nor step too quickly before you are ready. Know your ground sufficiently and that of associates, too.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Influences highly stimulating. Overzealousness, overreaching may tempt. Hasty words and deeds could cause endless redoing and undoing; leave scars, too.

YOU BORN TODAY have a vibrant, warm personality but are inclined to be extremely temperamental — especially if you feel that your "rights" are being infringed upon. With a strong gift of leadership, you chafe under orders and will probably not remain in a subordinate position for very long. Many fields are open to you in choosing a career, but notably the law, medicine or writing — especially as a dramatist or critic; also the business world, where you could capitalize on your fine organizing abilities. U.N. Refugee Commissioner Steps Down After 12 Years

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan is turning his attention from the age-old problems of refugees to the brand new risks of the looming "plutonium era."

Sadruddin, who retires next month as U.N. high commissioner for refugees, says he will devote more of his energies and financial resources to issues of ecology and energy.

In an interview, the 44-year-old prince also reflected on his 12 years as refugee commissioner, remarked on the lack of support for his work from Communist and oil-exporting countries and discussed the plight of human rights in the world.

Harvard-educated Sadruddin inherited a tradition of international service as well as money from his father, the late Aga Khan III, who headed the Ismaili Moslem sect for more than 50 years and was president of the League of Nations assembly in 1937.

The prince said the problems of nuclear energy have caught his attention in particular.

The cause of the prince's concern is the world's embryonic system of fast-breeder nuclear reactors, which produce plutonium, the raw material for nuclear bombs.

Many critics view the building of fast breeders as a step toward greater proliferation of nuclear weapons. But once the technology is perfected the fastbreeder system may offer virtually limitless nuclear energy.

The prince named names when it came to who helped on the refugee problems and who didn't. "If you look at the record you will find that 10 or 15 percent of the membership has contributed in a meaningful way to eradicate the refugee problem," he said.

"There are some countries that should have done more. I'm thinking particularly of the socialist countries and the oil-producing countries."

In 1976, the East European Communist bloc contributed nothing and 12 leading oil-exporting nations a total of only $105,000 to the high commissioner's annual programs. The United States gave $3.2 million.

The office this year is spending $72 million in helping tens of thousands of refugees from Southeast Asia to new homes in Europe, Africa and the Americas.

Sadruddin himself is a citizen of one of the leading oil producers, Iran, but has never lived there.

The prince said it is becoming increasingly difficult to protect the rights of refugees. The United States for years has called for establishment of a U.N. high commissioner for human rights to pressure repressive regimes to reform, and Sadruddin said the U.N. Human Rights Commission is "not sufficient. Its procedures are slow and cumbersome."

But he said he has no ambition to be the first human rights "czar."

"Dealing with the human rights of refugees you are in a position to contribute in a concrete way to a particular group of people," he explained. "But to deal with questions related to human rights when governments do not agree among themselves ... it would be much more difficult."

Long Cold Fronts Bring Wet Weather To Nation

By The Associated Press

Long cold fronts on opposite sides of the continent threatened continued wet weather for wide areas of the nation today, with Montana and Idaho bracing for a major snow storm.

Heaviest accumulations were expected in the western mountains of Montana, with temperatures expected to drop into the teens in some parts.

A Rocky Mountain cold front contributing to the Idaho weather dropped temperatures into the 30s on the eastern Plains, bringing light snow to scattered areas of Colorado. More snow, somewhat heavier, is expected over the weekend.

Wetter weather was good news in southern California, where firefighters contained a forest fire after a three day battle. They attributed their success, in part, to the weather which became warmer and more humid today. The blaze, near Malibu, about 30 miles west of downtown Los Angeles, consumed more than 1,300 acres before the weather took its turn.

Rain with snow over the mountains and cooler temperatures was expected to cover the Pacific Northwest today.

The other cold front, out of the eastern Great Lakes, and a warm, moist southerly flow of air ahead of it are helping keep temperatures mild in the southeast while spreading thunderstorms over a wide area. Scattered patchy fog was expected across Georgia today.

Northern Alabama was hit with a line of thundershowers early today. Brief periods of heavy rain and periods of strong winds were forecast for most of the day in an area, including Tuscaloosa and Birmingham.

West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky, sprinkled with rain on Wednesday, may see some snow flurries before the weekend because of the cold front. Most of the rain in the area Wednesday fell mostly on the mountains.

Showers extended into the Appalachians, New York and the middle Atlantic states.

A stubborn low pressure center near Lake Superior continued to bring light snow to northern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EST ranged from 76 in Key West, Fla., to 30 in Glasgow, Mont.

Problems Of Alcoholic Discussed

On Nov. 9, a seminar and luncheon jointly sponsored by the Pickaway County Community Action Alcohol Program, the Pickaway County Council on Alcoholism, and DuPont was held at Pickaway Arms.

Introductions were by Pickaway County Council on Alcoholism President Roy McSherry, and the invocation by the Rev. James Pollard.

Frank X. Lawlor, advisor on Alcoholism for the DuPont Company's Medical Division gave an informative presentation regarding the problems the industrial alcoholic causes himself, his employer and his co-workers as well as his families and friends. He told about the type of program established by DuPont to assist the alcoholic in confronting and overcoming his problems.

Lawlor stated that he was pleased to see such a large turnout from local industries and he stated that he hoped that this show of interest would lead to the further development of programs to assist the industrial alcoholic.

Representatives at the seminar were from several local industries: Ralston Purnia, Owens Illinois, DuPont, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, and General Electric, as well as several concerned citizens and representatives from Community Action, Berger Hospital, the Central Ohio Regional Council on Alcoholism, the Pickaway County Council on Alcoholism, the Scioto Paint Valley Mental Health Clinic, the Pickaway County Mental Health Clinic, Veterans Administration Hospital, and the Fairfield County Health Department-Division of Alcoholism, and Al-A-Teen and Al-A-Non.

Also present were Pickaway County Commissioners, L. Robert Liston, Don Strous, and Carl Schein and Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff.

Sadat-Begin . . .

Sadat followed up his overtures that produced the Israeli invitation with a cable Wednesday to a to a leftist, peace-oriented symposium in Tel Aviv. In it, he expressed "the hope that your deliberations will prompt you to see the living reality of the Palestinian people and their inalienable right to statehood."

As Sadat and Assad met at the Syrian president's home, leaders of Assad's Baath Socialist Party gathered for a rally to celebrate his bloodless seizure of power seven years ago Wednesday. All speakers condemned individual peace-seeking moves but did not attack Sadat by name. Assad and Syria's press also have refrained from this.

Assad in 1974 and 1975 strongly criticized Sadat for negotiating agreements with Israel providing for Israeli withdrawals in the Sinai Desert. Assad wanted the Egyptians to hold out until the Israelis agreed to return the Golan Heights to Syria.

'The Champ' Tough Decision For Zeffirelli

NEW YORK (AP) — Film director Franco Zeffirelli says one of the toughest decisions he's ever made involved winnowing down a field of 600 to 39 semi-finalists for the Jackie Cooper role in a new version of "The Champ."

Six hundred boys from all over the metropolitan area, aged 7 to 9, answered a casting call two weeks ago. The original movie was made in 1931.

After interviews with the 39 semi-finalists, Zeffirelli will choose 10 or 11 boys to read scenes from the script. Eventually all will be eliminated except three — one to play the Cooper role and the others to play his pals.

The reason the elimination process was tough, Zeffirelli says, is that "the kids in New York are so streetwise, they're like small adults." He says he found it "really incredible at the age of 7 to have such wisdom. And they have such beautiful, expressive eyes. That's what I zero in on."
